A most delightful function was the luncheon given Thursday in compilment to Mrs. Alfred Franklin Smith by the ladies of the Methodist Church, When the luncheon was planned it was to be given in appreciation for all Mrs. Smith had done in a musical way for the church of which her husband is pastor. Before the date set, Mr. Smith received an appointment as president of Central Female College of Lexington, Ky. So the entertainment was really a formal farewell. The luncheon was given in the parlors of the church, which were elaborately decorated in spring flowers, white haws, dogwood, apple blossoms and some mountain wild flowers brought from the Czarks by Mrs. Wilher F. Warner, Mrs. Smith received below stairs, assisted by Mrs. Fletcher Young and Mrs. Ewell Buckner, Sr., while Mrs. Warner and Mrs. Farley received in the parlor. When the greetings were over Mrs. Smith led the way to the dining room with Mrs. Perry V. Jenness. Covers were laid for one hundred and fifty, and the guests were members of the Ladies' Ald societies of the Baptist, Episcopal, Presbyterian and Methodist churches.

The three tables—in the form of Maltese crosses—were also in green and white. In the center of each was a large fern surmounted by smaller ones, and in the center of each arm of the cross was a bowl of lilles of the valley. While discussing a dainty menu, Mrs. Ponsford of Cincinnati proposed a toast, "The Guest of Honor," to which Mrs. Smith responded with the Association of Ladles' Ald Societies to which she asked Mrs. Young, president of the Methodist Ladles' Ald Society, to respond. Mrs. D. H. Black, president of the Baotist Ald Society, and Mrs. L. M. Gerould of the Presbyterian society also made a few remarks.

TO PROTECT BIRDS

Agreement Just Made in the East Covers a Period of Three Years-Effort to Head Of Humming-Bird Craze.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, May 2.-Wholesale millinery dealers, who have found that the constant agitation of the Audubon Society and the Ornithologists's Union threatened to make vast inroads on the millinery business, bird and feather trade, are preparing to cry truce to the enemy in the interests of that vest industry known as the fancy feather trade, for which the feathers are obtained from domesticated fowls, ducks, pigeons, and the little-appreciated barnyard rooster. and the little-appreciated barnyard rooster. By an agreement with the Audubon Society and the Ornthologists' Union the Millinery association has promised to abstain from the importation, manufacture, purchase or sale of such birds as these two societies particularly desire to protect. They have also agreed to spread the gospel of abstinence among all branches of the trade. The milliners hope that by this concession they will be able to stem the tide of feminine fancy, which has set so strongly sgainst birds and feathers, because of the alleged inhumanity in wearing these decorations. oradons. BOYCOTT MAY CEASE

Active agitation for the boycotting of all birds and feathers will naturally cease, they believe, when it becomes generally known that the plumage and the trimmings offered in the shops are not the rare birds they have always been supposed to be, but are merely made-over pluckings from the domestic hen, whose life has al-ready been taken for purposes which are considered legitimate. Meanwhile, the American farmer will have opened before him a vast field of wealth which has been hitherto unexplored in this country. The raising of domestic fowls with their plumage may just as readily become a regular industry here as it is in Germany, and even where the poultry industry is kept up primarily for its food products the byproduct of feathers will yield no small ad-dition to the financial results. According to the agreement made between the Millinery Association and the two so-cieties, which will be announced to the millinery trade on May 25, and will be in force three years, the members promise to abstain from the importation, manufacture, purchase or sale of guils, terns, grebes, humming-birds and song birds, and on and after January I, 1894, they promise that the importation, manufacture, purchase of sale of plumage of egrets or herons and American pelicans of any species is to American pelicans of any species is to cease, and these birds are to be added to cease, and these brus are to be added to the prohibited species just mentioned. WILL LOSE MONEY.

The millimers declare that this agree-ment will cost them great sums of money, but they are prepared to make it in order to stand well in the opinion of the humane community.

"If the women who are so afraid of wearing a rare bird could only see where we make them up they would not feel so badly about it," said one milliner to-day.

"Often a particularly rare bird will have the breast of a pigeon and the plumage of some other equally domesticated birds. The birds are painted and dyed with aniline dyes so that they resemble the real bird for which they are made."

Incidental to its crusade against the use of prohibited birds, the Millinery Associa-Dame Fushion in her effort to bring the humming bird to the front. Already, say short time the craze will reach this side of the ocean.

The Millinery Association is going to nip it in the bud, if possible, because they feel sure that if it becomes the rage the trade will be in constant trouble with the Audu-
